ALABAMA JURORS CONVICT NEGRO; DEATH SENTENCE

Patterson Is Convicted Third Time For Assault On Woman

Decatur, Ala., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Convicted a third time in less than three years on a charge of attacking a white woman, Heywood Patterson, one of seven Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" again was under sentence of death today.

Unmoved, the 21-year-old Chattanooga, Tenn., Negro last night heard a Morgan county jury return the verdict he had heard on two previous occasions—"We the jury find the defendant guilty as charged, and fix his punishment at death."

Patterson was convicted on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price who, with Ruby Bates, was alleged to have been attacked by the Negroes aboard a freight train in Jackson county, Alabama, on March 25, 1931.

Start Second Trial
Seated beside Patterson as the verdict was read was Clarence Norris, second of the defendants to be tried at this term of court. Judge W. W. Callahan was preparing to swear in a jury for the trial of Norris, starting today, at the time the Patterson jury reported its decision after 25 hours deliberation.

The Negroes were first convicted and sentenced to death at Scottsboro, seat of Jackson county, in April 1931. They won an appeal to the United States Supreme Court and the trials were transferred here under a change of venue. At his second trial Patterson was given the death penalty but the trial judge set aside the verdict.

Six Defendants Remain
Judge Callahan probably will wait until completion of the trial of Norris and the five other defendants, all scheduled to be tried at this term of court, before formally sentencing Patterson. Two of the nine Negroes involved in the case were held to be juveniles and placed in custody of Morgan county juvenile authorities.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney retained by the International Labor Defense as chief counsel for the Negroes, indicated another appeal would be carried to the United States Supreme Court. Norris faces the same charge which Patterson was convicted, that of attacking Mrs. Price. Ruby Bates testified at the first trial in 1931 that she was attacked but returned dramatically to repudiate her testimony at Patterson's second trial last April.

Radio stations were warned to be in readiness at all hours to intercept signals from the Lindbergh plane, on which Mrs. Lindbergh handles the sending key.

Hoover's Brush With Rolph Recalls His Prediction He Would Keep Silent About Public Affairs For Nine Months

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A prediction by Herbert Hoover that he would remain publicly silent nine months after leaving the White House was recalled today by close friends as an aftermath of his brush with Governor Rolph of California.

The ex-President missed his forecast by four days. His period of public silence lasted eight months and 26 days.

Newspapermen who learned of Hoover's prediction before he left the Executive Mansion sought out men today in a position to know something of the ex-President's plans and intentions. Almost unanimously they expressed—in private, of course—their belief that

Members of the city council labored for three hours last evening in the mayor's office in an effort to draft a liquor ordinance, which could be passed as an emergency measure and become effective immediately upon its publication. The meeting was called for 8 o'clock and at 8:30 members of the council filed into the chambers where City Clerk Blake Grover called the roll.

Commissioner Cal G. Tyler of the Department of Public Health and Safety was absent from the meeting. Mayor Dixon announced that the council would recess for a half hour to complete drafting the ordinance, and the commission again retired to the mayor's office. At 9:30 they emerged and again filed into the council chambers where the mayor read the lengthy draft of the emergency ordinance.

The measure is entitled "An Ordinance to License and Regulate Retail Liquor Dealers in the City of Dixon" and contains about a score of sections. The first clause defines a retail liquor store as a place selling liquor and sets forth the first stringent requirement that being that liquor is not to be consumed upon the premises of any such retail liquor store.

Liquor stores will be forced to remain closed on Sunday's the ordinance requires.

GRIEF-STRICKEN NACHUSAFATHER ATTEMPTS DEATH

Harold Emmert Tries To Follow Daughter To Great Beyond

Harold Emmert, prominent farmer residing east of the Nachusa orphanage on the Lincoln Highway, attempted to end his life this morning about 10:30 by hanging. Sheriff Fred Richardson and Deputy Ward Miller were called to the Emmert farm home, following the discovery of the attempted suicide. He was brought to Dixon and taken before Judge Leech and a commission of physicians in the county court, where he was committed to the East Moline hospital for treatment and was taken to that institution at once.

Mr. Emmert has been grief-stricken since the death of his daughter, Jean Carey, Oct. 16, and for some time had been under constant observation. Only a few days ago he had returned home from a sanitarium at Milwaukee, where he had been taken, and his condition appeared to be improved.

This morning he asked to be permitted to go to the barn at his home and his request was granted. The hired man was working in the barn and Mr. Emmert left the house, but went to an outside basement door, where he entered the basement. Securing a piece of clothes line, he improvised a noose about his neck and attempted to end his life. His action was discovered and a physician summoned, after which the sheriff was notified. His condition was said to have been quite serious when the physician arrived, but he recovered and appeared to be suffering no serious effects when brought to Dixon.

OHIO LAWYER IS FOUND GUILTY OF POISON MURDERS

Arkansas Jury Orders Mark Shank, Akron, Put To Death

Benton, Ark., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A jury, unconvinced by his plea of insanity, has ordered the death penalty for Mark H. Shank, Akron, Ohio, attorney, convicted of the poison murder of Alvin Colley. Shank is also under indictment for the murder of Colley's wife and two of their children. All died from poison placed in grape juice at a picnic last August 15.

The verdict was returned late last night by the jury after deliberating nine hours. The defendant showed no emotion but his wife, given credit for much of the work of planning his defense, collapsed and was carried from the courtroom to her hotel on a stretcher.

Defense attorneys announced they would renew the fight to free Shank. He has until next Thursday to file motion for a new trial, notice of which was given after the verdict was reported. If the motion is overruled, the attorney will be sentenced to death immediately. He will have 60 days in which to file an appeal.

Pleaded Insanity
Shank's counsel based his hopes for an acquittal on a plea of insanity. Testimony was allowed to go into the records blaming third degree methods for his alleged confession. His chief attorney, Nathan McDaniel, had pleaded in final argument that the defendant is "crazy as he can be and his every act since he left Akron and came to Arkansas is that of an insane person."

Against the plea of the defense, the prosecution contended the crime was motivated by Shank's fear of the possibility of being implicated with Colley in the alleged theft of documents from the prosecutor's office at Barboursville, Ohio, and his desire to preserve his reputation and "to keep out of the penitentiary."

Four-year-old Clyde Colley, the only member of the Colley family to survive the fatal picnic, was ready today to return to Ohio with Clyde Colley, brother of Alvin. Clyde also was poisoned but recovered.

IZALCO VOLCANO IN EL SALVADOR ERUPTED TODAY

Plantations and Livestock Farms Covered With Lava

Hilo, Hawaii, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The entire island of Hawaii was shaken today by rattling earthquake shocks, accompanied by seismic disturbances, as Mauna Loa Volcano burst into unusual activity.

San Salvador, El Salvador, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Coffee plantations and livestock farms were covered by lava today after an eruption of the Izalco volcano. Lava was reported to have spread to within a few miles of the town of Izalco.

Two farmers, who ventured into the stricken region in an effort to save their cattle, were overtaken by molten lava and perished. Old residents said it was the most violent eruption in many years. An official commission was sent to the area, but could not approach very near to the volcano because of smoke and the intense heat.

An enormous chasm opened nearby, but no tremors were reported either here or in the vicinity of the volcano about 50 miles north of San Salvador.

Fearing further eruptions, the governor of the province of Sonsonate ordered residents of the vicinity to abandon homes near the volcano.

PAPAN HAS ERUPTION
Tokyo, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Ashes were scattered on nearby villages, said a report reaching here today, in an eruption of Mt. Paruan, an active volcano on Kookaido, north-east of the main islands of Japan. A column of smoke 3,000 feet high arose. There were no casualties, according to Asahi dispatches from Muroran.

Ford Dealer Given Contract For 700 Trucks For CCC; Even General Johnson Approved Award Made

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Henry Ford may not be flying the blue eagle, but he is so nearly complying with the automobile code that one of his dealers today has a new contract to furnish possibly 700 trucks for the CCC.

There may, however, be subsequent study of whether the bid which won the contract for the Bethes, Maryland, Ford dealer was under the minimum price fixed by the code.

Agreement to award the contract was announced by Secretary Wallace, who said the decision had been concurred in by Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief.

For weeks the automobile purchases had been held up while officials decided whether the government could buy from Ford since he had not signed the code.

Comptroller General J. R. McCarl held that even though Ford had not signed, his dealers' bids were acceptable if he were complying with code terms.

Even Johnson said Ford was complying. But subsequently Johnson wondered publicly whether the bid for the trucks—the government may take as many as 700—was under the code minimum.

That was referred to McCarl, who said that was a question for "judicial determination" and not for the purchasing officer to decide.

Wallace said the decision to accept the Ford bid was based "on the advice of the Comptroller General as to the best way to secure compliance with the President's recovery program."

ONTARIO JUDGE RULED AGAINST MARTIN INSULL

Former Utilities Magistrate Released Under Big Bonds

Toronto, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Martin J. Insull, former Chicago utilities chief, was arrested today for extradition to the United States to face trial and released two hours later on $10,000 bail.

His release was pending the hearing of a motion for his discharge under a writ of habeas corpus set for Friday, Dec. 8. Justice A. C. Kingstone of the Ontario Supreme Court, had given Insull the right to appeal against a judgment which he passed granting Cook county, Ill., extradition of the man sought for trial on embezzlement charges.

Cook county sought his return to face charges of embezzlement and grand larceny growing out of the collapse of the Middle West Utilities last year.

Insull's brother, Samuel Insull, is now in Athens, Greece, where he waged two successful court fights against extradition.

In Canada A Year
Martin Insull himself has been living in Orillia, Ont., more than a year since he left Chicago shortly after the failure of the Insull enterprises.

The present legal contest, by which he sought to avoid return to Chicago, where a grand jury had indicted him, has been under way most of the time since he has been in the Province.

The gray haired man was taken into custody immediately after the judge announced his decision. Insull, who has attended all the sessions, showed no sign of emotion at his arrest.

Specific Charges
Justice Kingstone's decision was rendered on the basis of evidence presented before him during the hearings which were ended last month.

The specific charges upon his extradition was sought were: "Theft of the sum of $344,729, the property of the Middle West Utilities Company; $66,000 the property of the Middle West Utilities Company; and the sum of $104,229 property of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment Company, between Oct. 15, 1931, and February 16, 1932."

CONSIDER PERMIT
Athens, Greece, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A decision as to how long Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, may remain in Greece under his present permit probably will be made at about the date of its present expiration, Dec. 31.

If the government decides that he cannot remain in the country after that time, it would be necessary to furnish him with official papers as a substitute for his United States passport which Washington cancelled.

Druggist Confesses Running Down, Killing Wife With Auto

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 2.—(AP)—T. J. Marby, District Attorney, said this morning that Carl Wickman, druggist held for investigation in connection with the death of his fourth wife, Mrs. Donald Chicomine Wickman of Denver, had confessed to police early today that he killed her last Saturday night.

Marby told The Associated Press the confession was made to Albuquerque police after they had taken Wickman to the scene of the woman's death where she was alleged to have been fatally injured when struck by a hit and run driver.

Wickman, who has been questioned constantly throughout the week by police and District Attorney Marby, had steadfastly maintained his wife was killed by a hit and run driver.

Federal Code to Control Import of Liquor Is Signed

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the liquor import control code regulating the amount and manner of importations.

The import code will be administered by the Federal Alcohol Control Administration.

A minimum amount of importations based on the five year average of 1910 to 1914, roughly estimated to be 4,000,000 gallons annually of hard liquors and 7,000,000 gallons of wine is provided.

A preliminary permit period is established until Congress acts. By signing this code the President has set up the machinery to regulate and supervise the liquor industry after repeal of national prohibition next week and until Congress lays down a permanent method.

Raleigh Gets All Blame for the Muskrat Scourge

Although Sir Walter Raleigh, the transitory favorite of Queen Elizabeth, still has the honor of having introduced tobacco in England, he should, in the opinion of the curator of mammals of the London zoo, also have the dishonor of having introduced the muskrat, which is the scourge of the agricultural districts of the British Isles.

From a certain odoriferous gland possessed by this animal, to which it owes its name, as well as from its pelt, Raleigh expected to make a fortune on account of its rapid breeding qualities. Unfortunately for his aspirations, it took just four centuries for the muskrat to become thoroughly acclimated, so its natural proclivities for perpetuating itself became at all evident. Then they became manifest in a way they never had in the New World whence they came.

Hercules Was First

The so-called "airplane spin," much fancied by some modern wrestlers, had its forerunner back in the days of Greek mythology, although the Greeks knew nothing of airplanes, and some of the modern wrestlers may know as little about Greek mythology. Hercules was the first recorded user of the airplane spin when he defeated Antaeus, the Libyan giant, who could not be thrown so long as he remained in contact with the ground. Any who visited his land was forced to wrestle with him, and he was believed to have built a temple to his father, using the skulls of his victims as the building material. Along came Hercules, the wonder worker, however, to do combat with Antaeus. Instead of wasting his strength in the vain effort to throw the giant, Hercules lifted him off the ground and while holding him in the air, strangled him.

Pueblo Indian Traditions

Back to the days when the Indian tribes of the Southwest fought among themselves it was traditional that the Pueblo Indians would seldom take the life of a Navaho. The tradition dates back to the legendary test by the sun between Uretsil, mother of the Cochitis, as the Pueblo Indians were called, and Naotsil, mother of the Vavahos. Naotsil, being the taller of the two sisters, Uretsil and Naotsil, challenged her sister to a contest. "Whoever the sun strikes first," she challenged, "her children shall be valuable. Whoever the sun strikes last, her children shall be worthless."

Greek Artist Exhibited

Proverbial Temperament
Apelles, famous Greek painter who painted the famous Venus Rising from the Sea and the picture of Alexander holding a thunderbolt, which sold for the equivalent of $800,000, had a novel method of obtaining criticism first hand. When he completed a picture he placed it in a public place, and then he hid himself to overhear what passers by said of it.

One case is cited in which a shoe-maker, after careful scrutiny, took exception to the shoes on the main figure, and Apelles took the picture away to correct the mistake. A day or so later the same shoe-maker found fault with another feature, but Apelles stepped around in front and requested him to confine his fault-finding to matters in which he was well versed.

Apelles lived in the Third century before Christ and little is known of his life. None of his paintings has survived to the present, although art lore is filled with stories of his excellence.

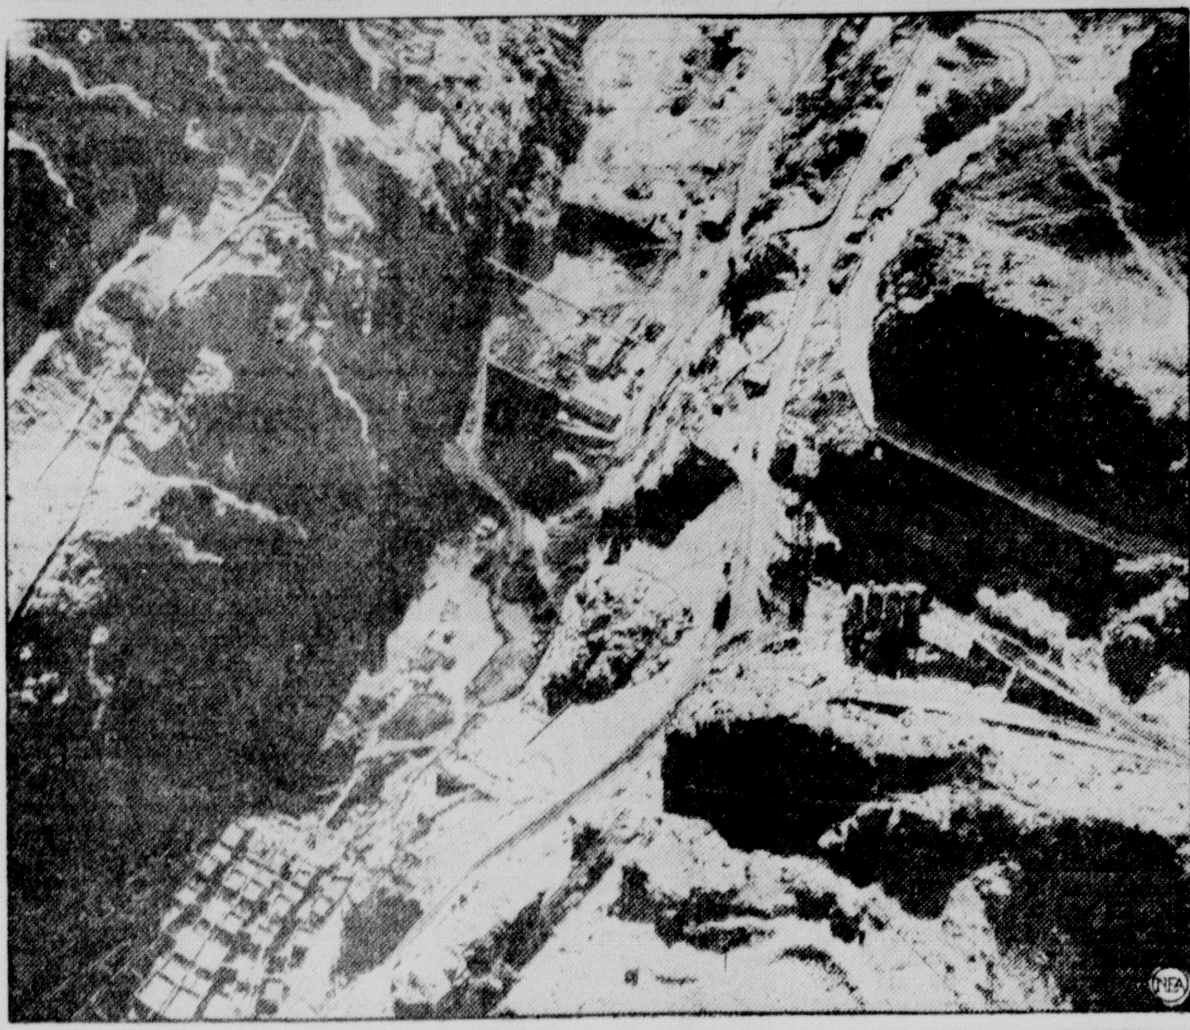

Ray of Ray's Arithmetic

Joseph Ray, educator, was born in Virginia in 1807. His early education was self-obtained, and he began to teach school at sixteen. Subsequently he studied at Washington college, in Pennsylvania, and at the college which is now the Ohio university. Athens. His degree of M. D. was obtained at the Ohio medical college, and he was for a time a surgeon in the Cincinnati hospital. From 1834 to 1851 Doctor Ray taught mathematics at Woodward college, Cincinnati, and when it was converted into a public high school he became its principal. During this time he published his series of school books on arithmetic and algebra. From about 1849 he was president of the board of directors of the Cincinnati House of Refuge. He died in Cincinnati in 1865.

Air View Shows Progress on Gigantic Boulder Dam

Has Ideal Photo Face

Movie photographers adore Jean Muir, because she makes their job so easy. No matter how she faces the camera, they say, her features will photograph perfectly. That's because they're symmetrical, as the photo above, with lines dividing the face into four equal parts, reveals. She may not be the perfect beauty, the photographers admit, but she's ideal to them.

Social Titles

The titles of Mr. Mrs. and Miss are several centuries old. In books of the sixteenth century, "Mr." was read as "Master" and "Mrs." as "Mistress." The title Miss is merely an abbreviation of "Mistress," and formerly any woman or girl was addressed as "Mrs." whether married or not. According to Edwards' "Words, Facts and Phrases," at a time when men were generally called by their Christian and surnames only, the word "Mister" was probably applied as a sort of title to those who had learned a mystery or trade, and who would be looked upon as of higher rank or position than mere laborers or husbandmen.

Origin of "O. K."

Of all the suggested explanations of its origin, probably the most likely one is from the name Aus Cayes (pronounced O. K.) in Haiti, from which the best tobacco and rum were imported in colonial days. The name of that port was frequently written as "O. K." and the letters came to signify good quality in other goods. The first Jacob Astor used the letters to indicate if a man was trustworthy. Andrew Jackson in 1790 proved a bill of sale for a negro on the Summer County (Tennessee) court records, "which was O. K." One authority traces it to a Choctaw Indian word "okeh," meaning "it is so."

LIQUOR CODE IS ENACTED FRIDAY BY THE COUNCIL

Liquor cannot be consumed upon the premises on which it is sold and it also becomes unlawful for intoxicating liquor to be consumed on any highway or in any public place and it must be sold only in the original package.

"Black List" Revived

The "black list" is revived under the new ordinance which requires that a record book be kept in each retail liquor store, which may be open to the inspection of the mayor, Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, the Chief of Police and police officers, in which the names of any who have been charged with drunkenness, vagrancy or operating motor vehicles while in an intoxicated condition, will be recorded, and to those whose names are registered, no liquor may be sold.

Section 8 of the ordinance concerns registered pharmacists and grants to these the right to fill prescriptions containing liquor for an annual license fee of $5 to be paid annually in advance.

Section 9 states that the new ordinance in no way relates to the sale of malt beverages.

The Commissioner of the Department of Public Affairs is entrusted with the responsibility of issuance of all licenses Section 10 provides. It also stipulates that upon the filing with the city council of a petition containing the signatures of 50 per cent or more of the property owners, requesting revocation of a retail liquor store license, that the council at their next meeting will be required to consider the petition and to revoke the license. This section also provides for the inspection of the premises at any time by city officers.

The penalty for violation for the provisions of the ordinance, according to Section 11, is not in excess of $200, but if violations are continuous, the maximum penalty is fixed at $200 per day as long as the violation shall be permitted to exist.

Section 13 defines the ordinance as an emergency measure and provides for its immediate effectiveness upon its publication.

With the calling of the roll the members of the council voted to adopt the ordinance as read, the motion being made by Commissioner Loftus.

Commissioner Campbell then suggested that a clause be inserted in the ordinance requiring that the retail liquor stores be closed on election days, to which the mayor replied that this provision could wait until the legislature has acted.

"He" means all persons, firms or corporations; "retail liquor store" includes any person selling, offering for sale or keeping with the intent of selling, liquor to the public in the original container and not to be consumed upon the premises, where sold.

Section 2. No person shall conduct a retail liquor store without first having obtained a license for each location, place or premises where liquor is to be kept, sold or offered for sale at retail. No vinous liquor shall be sold in quantities less than one pint. No other liquor shall be sold in quantities less than one-half pint. No liquor shall be sold in the City of Dixon except when authorized by a license issued pursuant to this Ordinance.

Section 3. Licenses may be issued to persons to conduct retail liquor stores, effective from 10 o'clock P. M. December 3, 1933, to and including the third Tuesday of April, 1934. Licenses issued thereafter shall be for each following fiscal year. The license fee for the period from December 3, 1933, to the third Tuesday in April, 1934, shall be One Hundred Fifty Dollars ($150.00), payable in proportion as the time of said period has decreased.

The license fee for each subsequent fiscal year shall be Four Hundred Dollars ($400.00), payable semi-annually in advance in proportion as the time of said period has decreased. No more than ten licenses shall be issued and in force at any time under this Ordinance.

Section 4. Any person desiring to engage in the business of conducting a retail liquor store shall file an application therefor with the City Clerk, on forms prescribed by him. Such applicant shall have resided in the City of Dixon for three months immediately prior to filing such application. Each application shall be accompanied by a bond given to the City of Dixon in the penal sum of Five Hundred Dollars, the sureties to be approved by the Council and conditioned for the faithful observance of the provisions of all Ordinances of the City of Dixon. Each license, with an application for a renewal of such license, shall submit a new bond conditioned and with sureties as hereinafter provided, to be approved by the Council.

Section 5. No license shall be issued to any person to operate a liquor store in any dwelling house or in any room in a building within one hundred feet of any building used for a church, public or parochial school, or hospital, or to any person who is a manufacturer, distiller, brewer or wholesale dealer in liquor or in malt beverages, or to any person at the time of the application and thereafter leasing from such persons the proposed location for the business, or any fixtures or equipment therefor, or to any person who receives from such persons any contribution toward the license fee or anything else of value.

Section 6. The word "saloon" shall not be used in any sign in or upon the licensed premises. No liquor shall be sold or delivered to any person under the age of 21 years, or to any intoxicated person or habitual drunkard, nor permit the same to be done by any agent or employee upon or about the premises and the burden shall be upon the licensee to establish the age of such minor.

No liquor shall be sold or delivered, or given away upon or about said licensed premises after the hour of 12 o'clock midnight, and before the hour of 7 o'clock A. M. on weekdays, or at any time on Sunday.

It shall be unlawful for any person to consume liquor on any public highway or in any public park, or about any retail liquor store except in the original container and shall not be consumed upon or about said premises. The place of business of the licensee shall not be transferred to any other location without permission of the Council and the filing of a new bond therefor. The Mayor, Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, Chief of Police or member of the family of any person may notify in writing any such licensee not to sell or deliver any liquor to any habitual drunkard or person habitually addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor, or person who has been convicted after the passage of this Ordinance of drunkenness, vagrancy, driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated or any felony.

Section 7. No liquor shall be sold or delivered to any person except in the original container and shall not be consumed upon or about said premises. The place of business of the licensee shall not be transferred to any other location without permission of the Council and the filing of a new bond therefor. The Mayor, Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, Chief of Police or member of the family of any person may notify in writing any such licensee not to sell or deliver any liquor to any habitual drunkard or person habitually addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor, or person who has been convicted after the passage of this Ordinance of drunkenness, vagrancy, driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated or any felony.

Section 8. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent a registered pharmacist engaged in managing a retail drug business from filling prescriptions of duly licensed physicians, or the selling of medicines and preparations recognized by the United States Pharmacopoeia and National Formulary, and are not to be consumed on the premises. Provided, further, that medicine fit for beverage purposes shall not be displayed, advertised or their sale solicited. Such person shall file an application in form substantially as filed by other applicants under this Ordinance, and upon a license being granted such registered pharmacist shall be authorized to sell such liquor for medicinal, mechanical, sacramental or chemical purposes only, upon payment of a license fee of Five Dollars ($5.00) for each fiscal year, payable annually in advance.

Section 9. Nothing in this Ordinance shall relate to the sale of malt beverages.

Section 10. Licenses issued under this Ordinance shall be only by action of the Council and shall be signed by the Mayor and City Clerk, and the Department of Public Affairs shall have control of all licenses and the collection of license fees and the Mayor may suspend any license and report such action to the next meeting of the Council, and the Council may suspend or revoke licenses at any time. Upon a petition signed by more than fifty per cent of the legal voters residing within three hundred feet of the building in a district where the greater portion of the property is residential in which liquor is to be sold by a liquor store, being filed with the Council requesting the revocation of such license, the Council shall within one week thereafter consider said petition and if it is found to be a valid petition said license shall be immediately revoked and all licenses issued under this Ordinance are subject to such revocation.

The Mayor, Commissioner, Chief of Police or any member of the Police Department, may inspect the premises of any licensee at any time and take possession of any malt beverages or intoxicating liquors found upon said premises in violation of any Ordinance of the City of Dixon.

Section 11. Any person violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be fined not more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) for each offense, and if it is a continuing offense it shall constitute a separate offense and such person shall be fined not more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) for each day that such violation shall continue.

Section 12. All Ordinances or parts thereof in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section 13. Inasmuch as the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States will become effective December 5, 1933, and it is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety that this Ordinance go into effect immediately, therefore, the Council declares that an emergency exists and this Ordinance shall become effective upon its passage and publication as required by law.

Approved by me this 1st day of December A. D. 1933.

Eva And Ethel Give Philadelphia Club Women Scolding

Philadelphia, Dec. 2—(AP)—It was "an extra added attraction" but Ethel Barrymore's denunciation of 300 Philadelphia club women as know-nothings stole the show from her erstwhile protegee, Eva Le Gallienne, and evoked a storm of protest.

The two famous actresses created their sensation—as full of drama as any of their theatrical triumphs—when they appeared at the Philadelphia assembly where Miss Le Gallienne appeared yesterday to "make amends" for her failure to keep an engagement last Monday.

Explaining her failure as the result of a "complete misunderstanding," her "apology" was such that it set the stage for Miss Barrymore, princess of the American theatre's "royal family."

"I don't know why we bother to speak to you," Miss Barrymore told the women, already smarting under the lash of her companion's criticism. "Miss Le Gallienne and I do you an honor to be here at all."

"You don't know anything. You don't understand anything. You don't appreciate anything. You never have known anything and you never will."

Although mild by comparison, Miss Barrymore's criticism of the audience was no less pointed. Asserting she had never broken a professional engagement in her more than 20 years in the theatre, she exclaimed:

"I would think by this time you would have a little faith."

Her scheduled lecture concerned her plans for a national repertory theatre, possibly with Federal financial aid. Then she introduced Miss Barrymore as "a great treat for you."

Mrs. Nellie Van Inwegen was entertained by the Van Inwegen family at their country home on the Black Hawk Trail on Thanksgiving day.

92nd Anniversary For Geo. L. Richardson, G. A. R. Leader

George L. Richardson, Commander of Dixon Post, Grand Army of the Republic, No. 299, is today celebrating the ninety-second anniversary quietly at his home, many friends and his relatives calling at his home, 719 Brinton avenue, to wish him happiness and congratulate him. He is one of Dixon's oldest residents.

One of the few remaining veterans of the Civil War in Dixon, Mr. Richardson is enjoying good health and still takes active part in the G. A. R. post work. He was elected commander of the post four years ago, and has been re-elected to that position each year since.

During October, 1874, he was married to Miss Millie DeWolfe of Dixon. They recently observed their fifty-ninth wedding anniversary at their home. Four children, Mrs. Mark C. Keller, John Richardson and N. F. Richardson, all of Dixon, and Miss Marguerite Richardson of Garden City, Kansas; several grandchildren all wish Mr. Richardson many years of health and activity.

Last evening in Masonic Temple one of the most successful dancing parties ever held there was enjoyed by the Dixon Chapter of the DeMolay and their guests, who attended from Chicago, Rockford, Mt. Morris, Oregon, Sterling, Morrison, Clinton, Ashton, etc., etc.

The Temple had been decorated simply, yet elegantly in the DeMolay colors of purple and gold, and presented a most attractive setting for the semi-formal party greatly enjoyed by the younger crowd, many of them home from universities and colleges for Thanksgiving vacation. The music by the Paul Russell orchestra was very good, adding much to the success of the enjoyable evening.

Public Health Meeting in Moose Hall on Dec. 8th

A new idea in health education will be tried in Dixon when the Lee County Committee of the Illinois Tuberculosis Association sponsors a free public health meeting here Friday, December 8th, according to Dr. David L. Murphy, vice-chairman. The meeting is to be held at Moose Hall. Doors will open at 7 o'clock and the program is scheduled to begin at 7:30.

W. P. Shahan, Executive Secretary of the State Tuberculosis Association, will discuss tuberculosis conditions in Lee county. The committee is arranging for several prominent physicians to give short talks on health and the prevention of disease. An hour of moving pictures, which includes two short dramas and one comedy, will be shown.

The meeting is free to everyone and there will be no solicitation of funds whatsoever, Dr. Murphy said.

The meeting here will be the first effort of its kind sponsored by the Illinois Tuberculosis Association, and if successful will be attempted in other towns throughout the state.

"Knowledge about the prevention of tuberculosis and the improvement of public health conditions is an essential in any community which is attempting to lower its tuberculosis death rate," Dr. Murphy pointed out. "Every Tuberculosis Association in Illinois is looking to Lee county to prove whether or not such a meeting as we are attempting can be done successfully. By a large public gathering we can present health education facts which we feel will aid in improving the tuberculosis situation here."

In addition to the instruction part of the meeting the committee is arranging a program of entertainment.

SUPPOSE WE TRIED MUSSOLINI'S PLAN.

Whatever else may be said about Mussolini's scheme for the government of Italy, it is at least one of the most interesting departures from orthodox political practice ever attempted.

To understand fully what it means, it is instructive to make an imaginative transfer of the whole business to the United States. Pretend that Franklin Roosevelt is Mussolini, and that the Fascist scheme replaces the present set-up over here. What happens?

Congress, to begin with, is permitted to die of malnutrition. It is suffered to exist for a few years longer as a sort of verminiferous appendix, but its functions are gone.

In its place rises a Council of Corporations. Here we have representatives from the great industries. One group represents the steel trust, another the coal trust, another the oil trust, another the tobacco trust, another agriculture, and so on, down the line.

It is a nice question whether you could say that these industries are under government control or that they control government.

At any rate, we go on down the line and find all our existing labor unions put on the scrap heap, to be replaced by huge vertical organizations, or guilds. All the workers in the steel industry are grouped in one body, all the automobile workers in another, and so on. And these unions are not like any labor unions we previously have known. They cannot call strikes. They are not independent.

And in politics? There is only one party—the Democrats. It is a rubber stamp for the president and his advisers. Its members never dissent from the policies of the inner circle.

They are disciplined perfectly. Republicans, if they open their mouths, are sent to the new prison on Alcatraz Island. Newspaper editors submit their editorials to Jim Farley for correction. Herbert Hoover and Norman Thomas migrate to Canada. William Z. Foster is shot.

It would be pretty hard to think of a more topsy-turvy arrangement. By imagining what life in such a castiron straitjacket would be like, we can get a new conception of the supreme importance of bringing our democratic institutions through the present trying times intact.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE BEFORE COLUMBUS.

American history holds no mystery deeper than the one which surrounds the activities of white men in America before the arrival of Columbus.

It is established clearly by now that certain Viking explorers did get to the North American continent a century or more ahead of Columbus. They slid down the coast of Nova Scotia as far as the Chesapeake, and in at least one spot they fought a deadly battle with Indians.

They are also reported to have landed on the southern shore of Hudson's Bay, and there is a partly substantiated legend that an adventurous band went overland from there as far as Minnesota.

All of this is called to mind by the report of two archaeologists that the prehistoric copper mines of the upper peninsula of Michigan, worked by the Mound Builders countless centuries ago, also were worked by Vikings.

The Mound Builders, whose civilization covered a large part of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, got their copper from Michigan. Then they vanished, and the roving Indian tribes who succeeded them seem to have been ignorant of the use of copper. But the archaeologists now believe that bands of Vikings somehow got to the shore of Lake Superior and took ore from the mines which the Mound Builders had abandoned.

The story is as fascinating a mystery as American history affords.

Northern Michigan, in the pre-Columbian era, must have been about as far from white civilization as any spot on the planet. It was infinitely more remote than any spot on earth is now.

Byrd, wintering within shouting distance of the South Pole, will be far closer to his homeland than the copper-mining Vikings of upper Michigan were.

How did they get there, anyway? What strange bit of restlessness, what urge to penetrate the depths of mystery and danger, led them so far into the wilderness? How far beyond Michigan did they wander?

Is there any truth in the old story that the light-complexioned Mandan Indians really descended from some lost band of Norsemen?

We probably never will get an answer to these questions. An impenetrable darkness has settled over that part of American history. But the mere thought of these sea wanderers in their eagle-winged caps digging copper ore from the pits along Lake Superior sets one's imagination working.

I see no practical difference between taking a drink sitting down and taking one standing up, and no particular efficacy in requiring one to eat a meal because he wants a drink.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Daily Health Talk

SLEEPING SICKNESS—II

The onset or development of sleeping sickness or epidemic encephalitis is usually characterized by a preliminary period of drowsiness and during this time the patient usually also complains of headache and dizziness.

Another early symptom of the disease which is common but not invariable is disturbance of vision. The patient complains that he sees everything double.

As the disease progresses the patient passes into a state of lethargy or apparent stupor, in which he loses interest in everything going on about him.

The stupor of the sleeping sickness is peculiar. The patient appears to be in a deep sleep, with eyes closed, but he can be easily aroused and when spoken to usually answers correctly.

However, when left to himself, the patient immediately falls into the same deep sleep, and may remain in this state of stupor for days or even weeks.

Associated with this stuporous state may be a variety of muscular paralysis involving practically any and every part of the body.

A peculiarity associated with the onset of epidemic encephalitis is the tendency of certain patients to become facetious. This is thought to be due to the irritation or stimulation of the front part of the brain by the virus of the disease.

There is as yet no known specific treatment for sleeping sickness. The disease is a threat to life. The percentage of patients surviving an attack has varied in different epidemics.

Unfortunately, even those who recover from epidemic encephalitis are not without the risk of permanent damage to their intelligence and to their motor or sensory nervous systems.

The disease frequently leaves in its wake serious permanent nervous and psychological disturbances as an added complication.

Everyday Religion

UNSUNG SAINTS

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

She was just a servant woman, and had been all her life. Stout, rough, hearty, given to strong language at times, all her days were spent in doing drab, heavy work. So far as books are concerned, she was utterly unintelligent; but she had read in the book of life.

Honest, just and kind, she had a deep pity for the forlorn and dejected, and her love of little children knew no limit. In one sense she was poor, but she had the Pearl of Great Price which, if ever there is to be a Judgment Day, will put her on the right hand of God; when all sorts of scientific folk, religious folk, students of poetry, and people with exquisite emotions, will go on the left and be lost.

Here are "the treasures of the humble"—not the handful of mist offered us by Maeterlinck—revealed in the sorrows she endured with dignity, the burdens she bore with patience, and in the simple goodness of which the world hears nothing or soon forgets.

She had faced sickness and death without dismay, and hard labor without a murmur, serving the God of pots and pans and tubs. She had no theory of duty, no philosophy, no theology, as it is usually called, save a whisper of old beliefs. But she had attained the one thing essential which philosophy and religion ought to help us to obtain; and if they do not help us to obtain it they are nothing but talk.

She lived not for herself nor in herself, and it was not even justice to herself that she demanded. Nor had she become what she was because death was before her. She

The balloon bird was a funny sight. "You sure know how to blow all right," said Scouty. "You must have good lungs. Shall I blow for a while?"

"A lot of blowing I can do. You see, I'm pretty healthy, too." "No, thank you," said the visitor from toytland, with a smile.

"I'm almost finished with it so you'll shortly have a heap of fun. Please tell me when it is long enough to carry all of you."

"You tots will sit right in a row, and when you are ready, off you will go." The Tines watched a little while. Then Duncy yelled, "You're through!"

Just then wee Dotty cried, "Hurrah! The sun is coming out today. It is peeking from behind a cloud, and my but it looks bright."

"It really has been chilly here, and when sunlight will bring us cheer. I wish the clouds would hurry up and float right out of sight."

"Don't worry," sighed the Star

Man. "You are going to see your wish come true. And that means that I'll have to leave you Tines behind."

"I told you once, when old Sol's here, he always makes me disappear. Now, look! The sky is blue. The sun soon will be hot, you'll find."

The Star Man then began to grow much smaller. Goldy shouted, "Oh, you are slowly disappearing. Gee, I'm sorry as can be."

"The Star Man said, 'I'll be all right. I will come back here with the night. I hope, sometime, you Tines will return and visit me.'"

And then the old man was no more. The Tines heard a sudden roar. "Come on," exclaimed the toytland man. "Let's start out on our ride."

"Now, don't get frightened. That is absurd. Just hop aboard your floating bird and we will sail out through the air till Santa Land is spied."

The Tines set sail for Santa Land in the next story.)

AS TROOPS HURLED TEAR GAS TO VANQUISH MARYLAND MOB

A cloud of tear gas marking the dividing line, this was the martial scene in Salisbury, Md., as state militia, standing with bayonets bared, sought to disperse more than 2000 men and women who fought to prevent the troops from arresting ringleaders of the mob which lynched a young Negro.

It was a dull, drizzly day when we laid her away, but the light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world shone in the room—a light greater than all the lights which can be lit by scientist or philosopher, as the sun is greater than a candle.

THANKSGIVING

Let us be thankful for our friends; for their love and assistance. Let us hold out to them neighborly hands of help, to render their burdens lighter, their troubles easier to bear.

Let us be grateful for beauty; for music and laughter. Let us bring joy to those who are unhappy and songs to lips that do not sing. Let us emit beams of gladness to brighten sad hearts.

Let us be glad for children. Let us strive to paint for them a picture of hope. Let us withhold from them the grim actualities of life until their tiny shoulders grow strong. Let us show them love

Let us be glad for young men and women. Let us not hamper them with poisonous and false teachings, but let us guide them with that advice which seems to be endlessly good. Let us instill in their minds the will to obey the Golden Rule, which is good.

Let us find blessings in the good works of man, and try to repair his shameful damages. Let us have courage to fight for right, and try to teach others to join in the conflict to the end that man will live in harmony.

Let us be mindful of America's greatness and her virgin possibilities. Let us struggle to develop those sleeping possibilities, so that Americans will be more contented, will enjoy to the fullest the fruits of the labors of pioneers.

Let us give thanks to Nature for her endless gifts. Let us give thanks for lack of evidence that her benefactions will not come tomorrow as before, and tomorrow; that little men cannot check the flow

Let us be happy that the world's current problems were made by man's own hands. Let us have faith in man's ability to swing himself out of the depths of despair. Let us have faith that man will not perish by his own ignorance.

Let us give thanks for our leaders who have courage to fight for right. Let us throw no obstacle in their way to trip them in their progress toward the goal we all seek

Santa Claus Bringing Eight of His Alaskan Wolf Hounds With Him

An Expert Driver Will Handle Dog Team Here Dec. 12th

When Santa Claus visits Dixon Tuesday, December 12, he will bring eight of his Alaskan wolf hounds with him. The team is one which Santa uses in the golden north and one of his Eskimo drivers who handles the team in the land of the frozen tundra will drive them in the gigantic parade which Santa will stage while visiting here.

Santa's dogs are animals which have learned to match their wit, speed, and endurance against the elements of the frozen north. The most intuitive of animals, they have learned to face hardship and in doing so, have developed an intellect almost human in combating the rugged country in which they live.

This land from which Santa's dogs come is known as Alaska. Children who have studied geography know that it is one of the richest possessions of the United States. It was purchased from the Russian Empire in 1867 at a cost of nearly eight million dollars and is located in the northwestern portion of the North American continent. Most of its sixty thousand inhabitants are Eskimos very much like the one who will drive Santa's dog team in his parade here.

Develop Human Traits In this land of the midnight sun, the thermometer sometimes drops to sixty and even eighty degrees below zero. The wind cuts like blades and smothering blizzards cover the frozen tundra with deep drifts of snow. Santa must use these dogs in this rugged country because they are the only animals who can traverse it. Often they find themselves compelled to crawl on their bellies to avoid being blown headlong into precipitous canyons or the yawning crevasses which streak across the faces of glacial Alaskan glaciers.

Animals living in a climate so rigorous must possess many admirable traits, worthy of emulation by the boys and girls whom Santa is coming to visit. Santa says, "They develop many human traits in the battle against the elements of the north. Examples are set by leaders among his dogs. Santa thinks can be put to good advantage in many respects by boys and girls who cherish the ambition of developing the science of leadership among men."

Santa will tell more in detail just which of these characteristics he admires most in a later issue of the Telegraph.

DR. J. E. CONANT

Beginning tomorrow Dr. J. E. Conant will conduct special meetings at Grace church. The speaker, who for years was a member of the field staff of the Moody Bible Institute, re-entered the field of independent Bible teaching and evangelism about two years ago. Gifted with the ability to think and speak forcefully, he seems the master logician—uttering the convictions that have become a part of his very life. Few speakers possess in so marked a degree as Dr. Conant a combination of spiritual sincerity and power with a command of logic that carries to the mind of the listener a conviction that the message is true as revealed in the Bible.

The community is to be congratulated on the prospect of his presence and ministry. "Dr. Conant is an eloquent, masterly, clear thinking and heart searching, yet withal a kindly, preacher. His illustrations and wit are constantly flashing and many are moved to tears as well as he forces home the truth," says the Herald of Mt. Vernon, Wash.

His meetings in Dixon will last at least two weeks and the public is heartily invited to attend.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Low
BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his apartment? DAVID BANNISTER, a former newspaper reporter, undertakes to find out. Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who visited King shortly before his death. Bannister has seen the girl, but she has since disappeared. HERMAN SCURIE, who wrote King a threatening letter, is in jail. He declares his innocence. AL DRUDIAN, friend of King's, says the orchestra leader has been having trouble with JOE PARROTT, his former vaudeville partner, and accuses Parrott of the murder. Police learn that MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster, had a violent quarrel with King after his car killed her cat. CAT-TAIN McNail of the detective bureau visits Miss Hollister and going to her home. Next day Bannister learns that the blond suspect has been arrested and goes to see her. She refuses to tell who she is or anything about herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI

THE telephone on McNeal's desk rang sharply and the captain made a grab for it.

"McNeal speaking," he barked into the instrument. "What?"

David Bannister, in a chair tipped back against the wall, gave his attention to the marine scene decorating the calendar across the room. The waves against which the gallant ship was tossing, Bannister thought, looked much too solid. Something like mattresses. Of course the calendar was all right in spite of the picture. The calendar bore large black numbers, easily read. Yes, the calendar itself was a good one.

McNeal's voice went on in monosyllables. "Yes. Yes. Well—"

He set down the telephone a moment later, scowling. "That was Steve," he said. Bannister knew he meant Steve Fisher of the detective bureau. "Thought he had Parrott located, but he's lost him again."

"Do you think Parrott's here in Tremont?" Bannister asked.

McNeal shook his head. "If he was," he said, "we'd have had him in a cell long ago. Oh, no! He's got out of here pronto. Parrott's a pretty tough customer you know. He's got a record—"

"No, I didn't know," Bannister interrupted. "What sort of a record?"

"State prison. Served eight months for passing bad checks," McNeal went on, describing the offense which had taken place in another state. "That's not all. He was indicted with some others on a narcotic charge in St. Louis last winter. Got out of it some how. Parrott's a tough customer, all right, but we haven't got anything on him. Nothing but Druggan's story—"

Bannister wasn't interested in hearing about that again. He said, "Listen, Cap, what about that girl back there?"

He was leaning forward, speaking earnestly. He would have gone on but suddenly the outside door opened. There was a girl on the threshold—Denise Lang. Behind her stood Parker Coleman. She looked from the captain to Bannister, doubtfully, hesitantly. Then, with a rush, she entered the room.

"You're the one I want to see," she said, crossing to McNeal's desk and halting directly before it. She was an inconspicuous figure in such surroundings. Her wise red suit was lavishly fur trimmed.

Bannister, who knew little of feminine fashions, recognized that fur. It was like some on a wrap Adele Allen had worn. Adele had told him what it was called and he remembered that it had sounded expensive. Sable—that was it. Her hat was dark brown, too, like the fur. The hat and everything else about Denise Lang looked expensive. There was the faintest odor of elusive perfume about her.

COLEMAN came into the room and closed the door behind him.

"Listen, Denise," he began. "She whirled toward him. 'I've got to do it!' she said. 'I told you, Park, that I've got to do it.'"

Then she was facing McNeal again. Either she had forgotten Bannister or completely disregarded him. "You're Captain McNeal, aren't you?" she asked.

McNeal was on his feet. "Why, yes, Miss Lang. Yes. Was there something you wanted to see me about? Is there anything I can do—?"

The girl's scarlet lips twisted. Her voice was lower as she went on and again Bannister noticed that quality of vibrance in her tone. "I—I didn't tell you the truth yesterday," she said.

McNeal's face was as blank. "What?" he exclaimed.

"I didn't tell you the truth," Denise Lang repeated. "I don't know exactly why except that it was all such a shock and—and it didn't seem important. But I guess that was wrong. I should have told you."

McNeal's face was grim again. "Well, let's hear it," he said. "What was it you should have told me yesterday? Here, Miss Lang, sit down."

He drew a chair forward. "Now then—"

He sank back in his own chair. For an instant Denise Lang's lashes lowered. Then she met the captain's gaze.

"It's about that girl," she said slowly. "I saw her."

"You saw—who?"

"That girl. The one who's in jail here. I'm sure it must be the same one. I read about her in the newspapers. I—oh, I just couldn't say anything about it before but since you've found her—I!" The words broke off. Denise Lang applied a wisp of hankie to her eyes.

NO ONE spoke and an instant later the girl went on. "It was day before yesterday," she said slowly. Everyone in the room knew what that meant—the day that had been Tracy King's last.

"We were going to play golf that morning, Tracy and I—." She stopped again, fumbling with her handkerchief. Her voice, that had been tremulous, was firm again as she continued. "We called it off because I remembered I'd promised to go shopping with Louise Holman. Louise was late—as she always is—and I went into the Tremont to order some flowers. As I came out of the flower shop I saw Tracy. He was standing at the foot of the stairs leading to the mezzanine, talking to a girl."

"What time was this?" McNeal broke in.

About 11:30 I think. Louise and I were going to look at hats and then have lunch later. Louise was to meet me at 11:15 but I know I'd waited at least ten minutes before I went into the hotel."

Henry Fishback Further details have been handed us concerning the death of Henry Fishback, a former Franklin Grove boy, a cousin of Mrs. Joel Senger and Mrs. Frank Group, also a relative to a number in Dixon.

The death of Mr. Fishback occurred after an automobile accident in Kansas. He had just purchased a new Studebaker sedan and started for California with his wife about two weeks ago, going from their home in Beatrice, Neb., to Fremont, to visit relatives and also to North Platt and on to Harvard, Neb., thence to Elkhart, Kansas, where the accident occurred. They had driven about 800 miles.

Mrs. Fishback stated that they were driving on a dirt road and at an intersection there was a big pile of dirt, where they were fixing the road. Mr. Fishback out on more speed to get through the dirt, after which the car shot across the road down an embankment and hit the other side, turning a backward somersault, then rolling over on the side. Mrs. Fishback found herself in the back seat, with her face badly bruised and skinned, and her neck badly wrenched. Her husband's arm was caught in the steering wheel and was broken in three places, the bones being badly splintered, protruding through the sleeve of his coat. They were taken to a nearby small town where first aid was administered, after which they were taken to Elkhart, twenty-five miles distant.

A specialist gave a serum to Mr. Fishback, as gangrene had developed, but to no avail. An attempt was made to amputate the arm, but he died during the operation.

The deceased was born about seventy-four years ago in this village, in the residence where Mr. and Mrs. Herman Blank live. His first wife was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wolfe, and was the sister of E. J. Wolf and Mrs. O. O. Miller of this place.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his second wife, two children serving as missionaries in South America and five other children in California, Nebraska and elsewhere.

Puppets Enter the Movies

Even before legitimate play-acting, puppets were public entertainers, and all the time motion pictures developed the funny little marionettes scorned the screen. Now, however, they've fallen for Hollywood and will participate in the new film, "I Am Suzanne." Lilian Harvey, star of the show, is making some of the puppets feel at home. Inset is Vittorio Podrecca, their manager.

Demands Job As Price Of Keeping Out Of Campaign

Chicago, Dec. 1.—(AP)—If a good state or federal job is not forthcoming soon, James H. Kirby farmer of Petersburg, Ill., says he will run against Speaker Henry T. Rainey for a seat in the national House of Representatives.

Kirby unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination for Senator in 1930.

He made public today a letter addressed to Speaker Rainey in which he said, in part: "When I told you I would not be a candidate against you in the coming primary, I think you understood that that was contingent on getting me a political job—either state or federal."

"That was the way I meant for you to understand it. Unless I know soon whether or not I'm to be placed in a fitting position, I will be a candidate for nomination in our district."

His platform, Kirby wrote, would call for severance of diplomatic relations with France "because she repudiated her war debts."
